2. Platform & Licensing Terminology

- Dubbing Rights: The specific legal permission granted to a buyer to take an original title and record a new audio track in a different language.
- Exclusive Rights: A licensing agreement where only one buyer is legally permitted to hold and distribute the selected content within an approved territory for the duration of the license term.
- Excluded Countries: Specific geographic areas explicitly carved out of a broader region where a buyer is strictly prohibited from distributing the licensed content.
- Flat Fee: A straightforward, one-time payment made by a buyer to a seller to secure licensing rights, with no ongoing revenue sharing.
- Included Regions: The specific countries or continental groupings where the buyer is legally permitted to broadcast or stream the content.
- License Term: The agreed-upon duration (e.g., 1 Year, 5 Years) that a buyer is legally permitted to distribute the licensed content.
- Non-Exclusive Rights: A shared licensing agreement where a seller can license the exact same title to multiple buyers or platforms simultaneously within the same territory.
- Revenue Share: A partnership payment model where the buyer pays a percentage of the ongoing revenue generated by the licensed content (via ads or subscriptions) back to the seller.

- Shortlisting: The critical marketplace action where a buyer selects a seller's submission. This action triggers the transition from the anonymous "Discovery Phase" to the "Negotiation Phase," revealing identities and unlocking platform chat.
